“Alternative Money”

An editorial by Jim Kerr

Imagine if you had a business where you produced a product where your profit margins ranged from 2,380% to as much as 238,100%! Impossible, you say? The Federal Reserve system has just such a business. However, inflation is driving up the cost of printing those bills, since the cost has risen from below three cents per unit to the current 4.2 cents per unit. The new color bills cost about 7 cents per unit. Nonetheless, they have a pretty good racket—a monopoly, actually—and they jealously guard it.

However, NORFED, an outfit that coins silver and makes notes substantially backed by silver, is beginning to make the Federal Reserve nervous, as evidenced by the U.S. Mint's announcement that it is illegal to use non-“legal tender” known as “Liberty Dollars.” Mint Spokesperson Becky Bailey said, “We don't want consumers to be fooled.” The government contends it is the only entity that is allowed to “coin Money, [and] regulate the Value thereof....” (Article

I Sec. 8 Cl. 5, U.S. Const.) Of course, it is the epitome of hypocrisy for government officials to say this, since silver and gold are intrinsically money, the federal government does not coin money with a value set near its intrinsic value, and Federal Reserve Notes are mere scraps of paper; but the fact is, people have always had the right to barter using silver and gold without resort to “legal tender.”¹

It is not only the Federal Reserve crowd that disturb our liberty, though. Daniel Buczek and his son, who use Liberty Dollars all the time in their town to purchase things, were arrested at a Buffalo Sabres game, when they offered them in exchange for beer. An ignorant security officer filed a complaint (they were offering silver in exchange for beer) against the men, and the Buffalo police charged the two with felony counts of criminal possession of forged instruments.

Of course, any prosecutor would be an idiot to take such a case before a jury.

There were no forged documents (“counterfeit” Federal Reserve Notes), and there was no counterfeiting, since NORFED coins in no way resemble any coins the federal government has ever produced. But bringing such charges demonstrates that Barney Fife “wannabe's” shall not be on the endangered species list any time soon.

Insofar as I know, NORFED is not a “warehouse bank” and makes no loans or anything of the kind, so as to make it “fractional reserve.” NORFED coins and currency appear to be quite sound. And while Gresham's Law (after Sir Thomas Gresham, 1519-1579) states that “Bad money drives out good,” many people want their store of value to be tangible. And there is no escaping the fact that people worldwide are starting to lose faith in the Federal Reserve Note. It must eventually suffer the fate all fiat currencies² have throughout history, since its value is based only upon people’s faith in it. For example, if you presented confederate money to pay for a basket of groceries, you would be laughed right out of the store.

Among the many reasons Bush et al. are going to war against Iraq and harassing other countries, is that successfully decoupling oil and the dollar (“petrodollar”) could wreck the Federal Reserve’s racket. Upstarts like Saddam started taking “Euros,” and now Iran and others are talking about selling oil in exchange for non-“Dollar” currencies. This could ruin the “Dollar.” If this happens, of course, all those American “Dollars” held by people overseas would wind up coming home, and inflation would inevitable go through the roof. Of course, this is no secret, as the rapidly increasing price of gold and silver reveals. Therefore, to maintain the petrodollar, we must rely upon the benevolence of oil producing countries; or we must bully them. Being an international “bully-boy” is characteristic of an empire, and history shows us that empires end in tragic collapses.

Yes, Congress passed a law that says only the Federal Reserve Note is legal tender (forcing us to use them to pay taxes, for instance); and that to refuse them for payment renders a debt void.³ But they are still only worthless pieces of paper.⁴ Ideally, I prefer to tender real money—gold and silver—as legal tender (the way God intended it); and failing that, I will go with gold, silver and even Liberty Dollars (or their equivalent), even though they are not legal tender. At least their intrinsic value is 100%, or nearly so, as in the case of NORFED. And, as necessary, I will use Federal Reserve Notes, for daily expenditures, and to pay taxes. Let the Federalies have the bad money. Nonetheless, I prefer to boycott the fiat currency monopoly, to the extent feasible. I would encourage other Americans to do the same; and to use gold, silver, and NORFED and its equivalent, in “How is the faithful city become an harlot! it was full of judgment; righteousness lodged in it; but now murderers. Thy silver is become dross , thy wine mixed with water: Thy princes are rebellious, and companions of thieves....”

Isaiah Ch. 1: 21-23 (KJV)

Dross. n 1: worthless material that should be removed; impurity. 2: the scum formed by oxidation at the surface of molten metals.

3. Some of our members own rubber stamps that state: “This Federal Reserve Note is a worthless piece of paper.”

4. John Kotmair has told me of a story of a man by the name of Klosterhaus who allegedly owed the IRS ~ 40,000 FRNS. They went down to the offices of the IRS, put the FRNS on the table, and asked the assessor to sign a paper verifying the liability and receipt of the funds. The assessor was ordered not to sign the document by his superior, resulting in refusal to accept FRNS to pay a “debt.” According to the legal tender laws, this made the “debt” void. Mr. Klosterhaus packed up his FRNS, and he and Mr. Kotmair headed for the elevator. Realizing their mistake, one of the agents ran for the elevator, and said that they would accept the FRNS after all. As the elevator door was closing, Mr. Kotmair informed him that he had his chance to accept the FRNS, and he declined; that the “debt” was now void. The elevator door closed, and that was the end of the alleged tax liability.

Malachi 3:3 says:

"He will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver."

The verse puzzled some women in a Bible Study and they wondered what this statement meant about the character and nature of God. One of the women offered to find out the process of refining silver and get back to the group at their next Bible Study. That week, the woman called a silversmith and made an appointment to watch him at work. She didn't mention anything about the reason for her interest beyond her curiosity about the process of refining silver. As she watched the silversmith, he held a piece of silver over the fire and let it heat up. He explained that in refining silver, one needed to hold the silver in the middle of the fire where the flames were the hottest as to burn away all the impurities.

The woman thought about God holding us in such a hot spot then she thought again about the verse that says: "He sits as a refiner and purifier of silver."

She asked the silversmith if it was true that he had to sit there in front of the fire the whole time the silver was being refined. The man answered that yes, he not only had to sit there holding the silver, but he had to keep his eyes on the silver the entire time it was in the fire. If the silver was left a moment too long in the flames, it would be destroyed. The woman was silent for a moment. Then she asked the silversmith, "How do you know when the silver is fully refined?" He smiled at her and answered, "Oh, that's easy - when I see my image in it."

If today you are feeling the heat of the fire, remember that God has His eye on you and will keep watching you until He sees His image in
